Sherwood Park

Sherwood Park/ Strathcona County

Strathcona County was named after Donald Smith, Lord Strathcona, who was born in the highlands of Scotland. He was an entrepreneur who eventually became the chief officer for the Hudson's Bay Company. Lord Strathcona also helped resolve the Riel Rebellion as Sir John A. McDonald's chief representative. On the way home, he met James Jerome Hill, the Great American railway builder, and together they became the founders of the CPR.

In 1952, Sherwood Park was developed to accomodate the employees of industries in the area (Refinery Row). Today, Strathcona County has a population of approximately 62,000, of which over 40,000 live in the urban centre.

Strathcona County is a wonderful place in which to live, work and play. Residents have access to a wide range of shopping facilities and recreational facilities. There is an efficient transit system that moves the people throughout the county and into the neighboring city of Edmonton.

Enjoy your stay! You'll find Sherwood Park a wonderful place to visit.
